A professional reconversion allowed me to pursue my passion for all things web and develop my knowledge as a front-end developer. As part of the multimedia team at Interaction Healthcare I have been able to develop and diversify my skillset, adapting my approach according to the needs and size of the project. I love being involved in each project from the start, be it creating the wireframes, benchmarking for a more innovative approach to the task at hand or simply giving technical advice. I take great pride in what I do and love the daily challenges my job provides.
